Audio Track Studio Mobile XR is a multi-track audio recording and mixing app for Windows Mobile devices (Windows Phone, Windows Embedded Handheld, Windows CE). It is an audio recording app that allows you to record professional quality audio files from virtually any microphone, and use the tracks you record to mix and edit them in a wide variety of production and composition techniques. The application's interface is fairly conventional and consists of a window with several toolbars at the top and a main content area. The recording area will allow you to insert one or more audio inputs and to connect them to the provided audio interface; once recording has started, there are only a handful of buttons available: a mute button, a volume increase button, a volume decrease button, a stop button and a playback button. Recording and playing back are controlled by the "control strip" on the main toolbar. You can also check if the selected input is properly connected to the audio interface by checking the items in the red (exclamation) mark of the "list" control strip. If not, you can change the connection settings by choosing "edit" from the menu of the "list" control strip, and then select the item from the list of input channels. In addition, the "list" control strip will show you the currently selected input and the one currently recorded. You can additionally create several "effects" modules and connect them to the selected input, in order to preview them. Once ready, you can save the recorded track to internal memory or to a USB mass storage device, transfer it to your desktop or to a remote location using Bluetooth or e-mail, or you can even use the program to export the track to professional music production software. With the introduction of grilling or otherwise baking meat, the era of pan-roasted meat was over, but many of us still make that choice, not only on a BBQ, but also indoors. The bigger issue is, grilling has become so popular that many of the main parties and even some kids' parties are now becoming grilling events. So if you're the one responsible for hosting the big bash, you now have to face the music – cooking meat on the grill is getting more and more popular and you are probably going to need to provide a huge number of different barbecue meats to your guests. How do you do it? First of all, you have to make the decision as to which meats will be the best choice. Chicken is always a safe bet, as is pork and beef, but you can also choose from lamb, bacon, potatoes, sweet potatoes, rice and pasta, and even prawns.
