Important!!! If you have trouble with the install step, the following two lines will help. The first line tells Firefox to delete previous instances of Firefox and the second line tells Google Chrome to delete previous instances of Google Chrome. `rm -rf ~/.mozilla` `rm -rf ~/.config/google-chrome` If those lines don't help, you can ask for help. In general, these types of errors are caused by having too many programs running at the same time. You need to use the terminal window to remove programs and not using the close button. You need the newest version of Google Chrome or Firefox. You can download the newest version of Google Chrome or Firefox from [google.com/chrome](or [mozilla.org/firefox](Google Chrome or Firefox will automatically update when it's available. If Google Chrome or Firefox version is already the newest version, please refresh the browser to update Google Chrome or Firefox. Google Chrome or Firefox is very safe, but it's good to have a backup. If you can't install Google Chrome or Firefox or you want to have multiple instances of Google Chrome or Firefox, open a terminal window and run the following commands: `sudo apt-get remove --`
