Furthermore, FIFA 22 introduces the "Mobility System" – a FIFA mobility grading system that provides a way of adjusting players' movement patterns in the way they play the game. Players with different skill levels can adjust the way they play the game, allowing lower-skilled players to use complex movements more effectively or the more skilled players to pick out weaker opponents. It also means that players can be adjusted individually, allowing them to increase, decrease, or abandon their favoured techniques. FIFA 22 also introduces a "Dynamic Tempo" which lets users fully control the pace of the match. Players can adjust the tempo of the game to suit different scenarios, for example, during the second half of a match when teams are more likely to score, or in open play when they are more likely to attack. This has the potential to introduce a new dimension of strategic play to FIFA gameplay. FIFA 22 will launch worldwide on 22nd September and is available to pre-order on Xbox, PS4, and PC. FIFA Ultimate Team players will be able to pre-load FIFA 22 prior to launch as part of the FIFA Ultimate Team Fall Season. FIFA Ultimate Team Season 19 will then follow on 18th October. Additional information on FIFA 22, including a list of features, gameplay modes and full details, will be shared closer to launch.Q: Leaflet.geo.obligateBboxLabel I'm using a projection (POT_L7) and the Leaflet.geo.obligateBboxLabel property to get a properly labeled coordinate and zoom window for coordinates in the last zoom level (World). This seems to work only for the basemap, not the geojson layer. It results in labels with a space in them: If I unset the option (ie. let the labels be regular), the labels become large: I've looked in the Leaflet source and I can't seem to see any differences. Anyone has an idea? A: I've managed to solve my problem by modifying the Leaflet.WebGL component... As described here, it takes too long to render all the polygons at zoom levels and I'm experiencing a performance issue, so I'm using an option called "continuous", which makes it render the polygons only at the current zoom level. So the code now looks like this: var mostRecentData = function()

FIFA is one of the world’s most popular and authentic sports video games, with over 70 million players in over 200 territories, and more than 4.4 billion people watching matches on TV every year. It’s the #1-selling video game in the U.S. market, the best-selling sports title of all time in Japan and the best-selling video game franchise of all time. With more than 50 million players a month on FIFA.com, plus over 10 million players connected to the FIFA Club in over 120 territories, the FIFA franchise is one of the industry’s most popular and influential brands. For more information and EA SPORTS FIFA 22 check out www.EA.com/FIFA. When does the game come out? FIFA 22 launches on September 14th for the PlayStation 4 computer entertainment system, Xbox One, and PC. Play to win, not just survive - FIFA Ultimate Team™ mode and FIFA Career Mode have been completely re-imagined, introducing updated gameplay mechanics which focus on more player control and a footballing philosophy of attacking and defending to win matches. This season also sees significant improvements to the Social Club, including a new preset created to allow players to create teams based on their clubs’ team colours, which will offer bespoke formations based on each team's playing style. The United Kingdom, Germany, France, Belgium, Spain and Portugal have also been given a number of new kits and competitions to play through as well as additional venues and improved player AI. We will tell you more about the modes, but for now, here are some more interesting facts about this game. RUMORBUMP! We’re psyched to finally share with you the latest edition of EA SPORTS FIFA, and we promise it’s no April Fool’s joke. It’s the FIFA 22 RUMORBUMP! FIFA 22 brings a number of fundamental gameplay innovations to the game, but what caught our eye was the new ‘Play To Win, Not Just Survive’ goalkeeping system and custom in-game formations. The latter allows you to alter the tactics and formations of your team when playing in FIFA Ultimate Team, or change your tactics depending on the opposition of a Career Mode match. For more on that, check out the FIFA 22 RUMORBUMP video. We also need to tell you that the
