new songs"" by The Echols, "We need a country less obsessed with rules and more obsessed with the kind of love that can fill the space a broken heart might leave behind" "Most people would find it extraordinary that I'm even considering this movie, but it's one that's been rattling around in my head for years and years, and I've been working on it nonstop since I first started adapting my novel into a screenplay." "The idea is that of a sort of a swashbuckling De Niro/Harvey Keitel/Christopher Walken kind of anti-hero, who comes in and plays with our expectations, and who becomes a bit of a villain and finds himself confronted with a lot of hard choices." "If I do that then it's my job to try and translate that into the kind of stripped-down storytelling that will hopefully allow audiences to connect to what I'm thinking." "The interesting thing about finding the balance is in many ways I've been working on the movie the whole time. I wrote the first two drafts of the script during the intervening years of my marriage, and I'm now reworking it for the third time because I think I've learned something about what works and what doesn't." "It's a hybrid documentary and feature film. It follows a group of nine men who are 'unexpectedly' sent to Iraq to do a job they thought they had learned to 'avoid.' It shows what it's really like when the delicate hand of bureaucracy governs the lives of men who are sent overseas and who go to dangerous places." "It should hopefully remind people that it's human beings, and that human lives have value and that we as a society, which has become very materialistic in terms of the pursuit of "stuff" that I think has
